be loved, admired and respected by men and women all over the world. As I said at the beginning, she was dedicated to her family, her husband. She never wavered in what she believed in. She never compromised. And after that lonely ride from Georgia, back to Washington, with her dead husband, she didn't stop. She continued to work for what she believed in, for the underprivileged, against injustice. The world was her family. So thank you for listening to me, and I think probably you agree with me, Eleanor Roosevelt is a role model for all of us.

SPEAKER BAACK: Thank you, Senator Crosby. Roll call.

CLERK: I have a quorum present, Mr. President.
